

Neck Lumps

Swelling or knots in the neck are a common reason we see patients. They can be benign or malignant. Our specially trained physicians are able to walk with you through the process of diagnosing and treating these problems. We can help give you peace of mind about this problem or help identify potentially serious problems that may be present. We have the expertise to evaluate and treat these conditions.